

MAN CRUSHED TO DEATH BY TRUCK

TODAY

The Dove Appears.
Make Crime Dangerous.
Shaw Sees Gandhi.
10 to 4 for Repeal.

By ARTHUR BRISANE.
(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

YOU READ in Genesis, chapter eight, that the dove came back to the ark. "And, lo, in her mouth was an olive leaf," so Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth.

Business and financial news-doves are beginning to bring little olive leaves to the ark of the depression.

Net income of railroads in the East has risen 15 per cent in November, compared with October.

Building operations in America went up more than 18 per cent in November, over October. We are gradually climbing up out of the slough.

Also trade is improving in Germany, much optimism there. Good news for one country is good for all.

Deep economists tell you, "the acute crisis is over," some industrial undertakings may break down here and there, but the depression flood is subsiding.

A BANDIT, stopping a letter carrier and taking his $1.50, did not touch the letters. Said he:

"It's your dough I want, not Uncle Sam's."

The bandit knows that Uncle Sam catches and punishes mail robbers, no matter what it costs. The way to discourage banditry is to make it dangerous to the criminal instead of, as at present, making it dangerous only for the public.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, in India on his way around the world, praising Gandhi, working for the poor untouchables, remarks that if Gandhi killed 6,000,000 persons in a big war, instead of threatening to starve himself to death, he would be one of the world's great.

Also Shaw says there are "untouchables" outside of India.

"If an English laborer proposed to marry a duchess, he would soon learn that he was an untouchable."

If, however, the laborer had found a gold mine he would cease to be an untouchable and might enter fine drawing rooms behind his wife, announced as "the Duchess of Blank and Mr. Jones."

In India that would be impossible.

THE SENATE judiciary committee has reported favorably by a vote of 10 to 4 a resolution to repeal the 18th amendment, under which this nation has been drinking bootleg gin and whiskey instead of milder drinks properly made. The saloon is forbidden in the report and states that want prohibition on their own account will be protected and encouraged in that desire.

They will also have, largely a monopoly of bootleggers and racketeers, but some, at least, will know how to atea to that.

HUMAN BEINGS believe in immortality, or think they do. So lions know nothing about it, yet the male seal lion recently died of grief at the loss of his mate in New York's Zoological Garden will have a sort of "immortality" while it lasts.

OHIO ASSEMBLY TO REST UNTIL MONDAY NIGHT

Another Flood of New Legislation is Expected.

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 11.—Another flood of new legislative proposals was anticipated today as the Ohio general assembly prepared to wind up its second week in session. Senate and house leaders indicated they would adjourn late today until next Monday night.

Probably the first piece of legislation will be enacted by the two branches this afternoon—the six months' appropriation bill. Failure to approve the bill before the week-end recess would result in a payless payday for state officials and employees Saturday.

Prohibition Bill Hearing.

The senate temperance committee, headed by Senator James E. Ford (D., Ross), was to turn its attention to the first of a number of bills dealing with prohibition. The committee assigned a hearing today on the proposal of Senator John F. Smolka (D., Cuyahoga) to amend the Ohio law to conform with the federal provision permitting the issuance of one-pint of whiskey on a prescription. The present Ohio statute limits the quantity to one-half pint every 10 days.

Smolka has a number of other measures pending before the committee ranging from repeal of State prohibition in Ohio to the abolition of the Ohio state prohibition department. He has introduced a resolution proposing a vote of the electors in November on a plan to repeal the prohibition amendment to the state constitution.

Feb. 7 Final Bill Day.

A report of the house rules committee is expected. The committee, taking cognizance of Governor White's request in his inaugural message that legislation be held to a minimum, tentatively has assigned Tuesday, February 7, as the final day for introduction of bills. The date is two weeks earlier than in previous sessions.

The deluge of proposed legislation in the senate and house yesterday brought to the fore the necessity of curbing new bills. The house received 34 new measures and the senate 14.

The proposals deal with more than a score of subjects. From amendments to laws regulating financial institutions to prohibiting trolleys from a motor boat in inland waters.

The financial measures included: Guaranteeing deposits in state banks; investigation of the banking system; increasing the tenure of office of the superintendent of banks to life; shifting the expense of liquidating closed banks to state general revenue fund, and requiring the state superintendent of buildings and loans to pay depositors on 30-day notice.

Gerrymander Proposed.

Reorganization of the state government to provide for the election of the governor and lieutenant governor for four year terms and vesting the power in the governor to appoint other executive officers except state auditor, who would be picked up by a joint session of the legislature, was suggested in a resolution of Representative William M. Boyd, (D., Cuyahoga).

The senate received the first gerrymander bill of the current session from Senator Harold G. Mosler (D., Cuyahoga). Mosler's re-districting proposal would disturb almost every one of Ohio's 22 congressional districts.

MONTOUR LETS GRADING, SPAN NEAR NEGLEY

Fifth Contract Awarded in Building of Railroad.

SPEEDING WORK Another River-rail Terminal Job is Listed.

The Pittsburgh Coal company today let a contract to A. G. Rothey & Co., of Elizabeth, Pa., for one mile of grading and the construction of a concrete bridge in the Negley district as the fifth link of a 13-mile Montour railroad, controlled by the coal company, to provide an Ohio river outlet for the Youngstown steel district.

The contract will cover the construction of the roadbed between the end of the Cummings Construction company's job near the East Palestine Country club and the main tracks of the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western railroad at Negley.

The railroad bridge, which will require 1,000 cubic yards of concrete, will span the east branch of Beaver creek which enters Pennsylvania north of the J. A. White Clay company's plant.

This angle of the Montour program, which is to be followed by the award of a sixth grading job in the near future, developed as a new move was made in the court battle between industrial giants over the proposed establishment of a river-rail terminal near Smith's Ferry, Pa.

Opposition Files Briefs

The Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroads filed another brief in federal court today in their injunction suit to stop construction of the Montour project.

The briefs were in answer to those submitted by the Pittsburgh Coal company, the Montour and other 10 days ago in which they asked to be dismissed as defendants in the legal battle brought by the Pennsylvania and Lake Erie against construction of the railroad.

The plaintiff railroads asserted they had invested millions of dollars in the vicinity of the Youngstown steel district, which the Montour plans to tap with its spur leading to the Ohio river, and that their lines were adequate for the traffic in that district.

Dispute Defendants' Claim

They disputed the defendant's claim that the proposed railroad is an industrial line and argued that it was a common carrier and thus under jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission. The I. C. C.'s failure to approve the Montour's line was the basis for the injunction suit.

In a history of the fights, the Pennsylvania asserted the Pittsburgh Coal company, of which the Montour is a subsidiary, has long sought some way to build a line in the Youngstown district to serve its own interests primarily.

Sharon Center Bank Bandits Get $1,100

For Second Time Within Month Village Institution Near Medina is Held up.

By The Associated Press.
MEDINA, O., Jan. 11.—For the second time within a month, the Sharon Center Banking company at Sharon Center, near here, was held up today by bandits, who escaped toward Akron in an automobile with $1,100 in cash and an undetermined number of postage stamps.

Three men participated in the actual holdup with a fourth waiting at the wheel of the car. Witnesses described the machine as a large sedan with the license plates upside down.

The robbers, striking just after the bank had opened for the day, locked John Bell, president, Frank Vallen, cashier, and Carl Berry, a customer, in a basement room.

Vallen escaped through a basement window and spread the alarm. Thomas Johnson, rural mail carrier, and Delton Robinson gave chase to the bandit car but were unable to get close enough to use a shotgun.

In a holdup last December 22, in which $4,000 was taken, Bell and Mrs. Dorothy Robinson, assistant cashier, were similarly locked up.

The stamps taken today were government property, having been left at the bank for safekeeping by the Sharon Center postmaster as was his nightly custom.

Township Expend $9,269 For Relief; 300 Families Are Aided

Ohio Farmers Urge Big Cut in Taxes

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 11.—Taxes on real estate would be reduced 40 per cent under a five point program backed by the Ohio Farm Bureau federation.

The program, adopted by the federation's trustees at a meeting with 200 farmers here last night, is designed to provide immediate tax relief for agriculture.

Besides the tax cut proposal the plan calls for refinancing of farm mortgages at a lower interest rate, money reform basing the value of a dollar on commodity prices, domestic allotment or other measure to make the tariff effective for agriculture and expansion of co-operative business among farmers.

Liverpool Board Reports $7,555.60 Outlay for Welfare Road Work During Year.

The Liverpool township trustees expended approximately $7,555.62 in relief work during 1932, of which $7,555.60 was paid out to workers on the township roads, according to the annual report, issued today by N. P. Kerr, chairman of the board.

Total expenses were $10,019.42, which included the $750 salaries paid the three members of the board. The trustees finished the year with the issuance of but one bond for $378, according to Kerr.

Approximately 300 families were aided, the report discloses. For groceries to widows, sick and the disabled unable to give a day's work in return, $454.78 was spent by the board. Coal to these cases cost $110.25; medicine, drugs $11.15, and doctors' bills, $149.50. Hospital care for indigent cases cost $491.10, while $149.56 was spent for funeral bills. In the purchase of milk for babies and tubercular cases, a bill for $294.67 was incurred.

Transportation for persons sent to relatives for aid cost $101.82, while flour distribution slips paid to the charity and welfare bureau represented an expense of $36. In addition, garden seeds costing $11 were purchased during the year.

Kerr points out that salaries, office expense and the cost of administration represented less than 10 per cent of the total expenses during the year, the rest being used for relief in addition to the financial aid, the trustees received the applications of 11 persons seeking admission to the county infirmary.

Thomas Farren, 25, of Shelocty, Pa., is Victim.

FALLS ON HILL

Meets Death as He Attempts to Block Wheels.

Thomas Farren, 25, of Shelocty, Pa., helper for W. J. Craig of Indiana, Pa., was crushed to death when he fell under the wheels of a heavily-loaded truck-trailer on the Canton hill, west of Lisbon, today at 4:30 a. m.

Farren had left the truck, carrying eight and three-fourths tons of merchandise from Pittsburgh to Massillon, Cleveland, Toledo and Detroit, to place a block behind the wheels of the trailer as it ascended the Lincoln highway hill at the end of the Canton bridge. The truck was driven by Harry McKee of 1258 School street, Indiana, Pa.

The helper is believed to have fallen when he attempted to replace the block on the truck back of the cab, which McKee occupied, as the motor vehicle neared the top of the hill. McKee felt the bump caused when the rear wheels of the truck and the trailer passed over Farren's body, but was not aware of the accident until he stopped.

The body was taken to the Ellis funeral home in Lisbon where Coroner E. R. Sturgis of Wellsville will conduct an inquest today. Relatives in Indiana, Pa., were notified of the accident.

The Central department answered four lungmotor calls.

The firemen made 500 building inspections during the year and orders were issued for the prevention of fires. There were 450 hours spent in flushing and oiling fire hydrants.

WELLSVILLE SCHOOLS FACE LACK OF FUNDS

No Taxes Expected Before March 15, Board Told.

The Wellsville school district will receive no county taxes until March 15, it was indicated by Charles Couts, chairman of the finance committee at a meeting of the board of education Tuesday night.

Couts said that the county budget fixing the rates of taxation would not be sent to Columbus until Thursday where it would be by the state tax commission. He declared there was no source of revenue in sight in the interim unless a decision was handed down by the courts in the intangible tax law test. Superintendent S. E. Daw said that on a recent visit to Columbus he was informed this decision was expected within 10 days.

Couts later suggested that part of the teachers' salaries be paid this month and that the board default in the payment of building bond interest until other revenue is received. His proposal was endorsed by the other members.

Clerk C. A. McLaughlin reported having received since the last meeting $1,000 in tuition money from the Madison special school district.

Superintendent Daw said that the school district had met the requirements for state aid and might apply for a loan from the state teachers retirement fund which, however, must be liquidated with funds obtained from the first half year taxes.

Daw also announced that the board was authorized to issue bonds in one-third the amount of the delinquent taxes of the district.

W. A. MacDonald said there is no market for bonds. He suggested that the state teachers' retirement fund be asked to buy a bond issue.

Daw reported that High School Athletic association had $1,000 in the Peoples National bank and that a 13 per cent dividend had been received.

The board, in answer to request of a girls' basketball team for rental of the high school gymnasium at a reduced price that the usual price, decided in view of the fact that janitor service must be provided and fuel and light furnished, that the fixed charge of $15 a night should remain in effect.

President J. S. McCulloch announced the appointment of the following committees: Building and grounds, Dr. G. W. McMillan, chairman; W. R. MacDonald, Charles Couts; teachers and text books, W. R. MacDonald, chairman; Dr. J. S. McCulloch, Charles Couts; finance, Charles Couts, chairman; F. A. Musser, Dr. G. W. McMillan; janitors and supplies, F. A. Musser, chairman; W. R. MacDonald, Dr. G. W. "I'm working and Smoking overtime—

hence a Milder Cigarette

"WHEN I work hard, I usually smoke more; and when I smoke more, I usually work harder—and that's why I want a cigarette that's milder."

We use in Chesterfield Cigarettes mild, ripe Domestic and Turkish tobaccos which have been aged and re-aged.

These good tobaccos in Chesterfield are used in the right proportions—that's a very important matter.

These good tobaccos in Chesterfield are blended and cross-blended—welded together; that, too, helps to make a milder cigarette with better taste.

How to Guard against the FLU

Every Review reader is urged to heed these precautions

The flu epidemic has reached this community. The health authorities are doing their part, but every individual must be on guard.

Keep the family medicine chest supplied with the sensible aids to health; any sickness weakens the system and lowers your resistance to germs.

Every household should have at least one hot water bag, in good condition, or an electric pad; and a fever thermometer. Sleep in airy rooms, with ample covering. Avoid an overheated house during the day; dress warmly when you go out. Beware of over-crowded cars, poorly ventilated public meeting places, stuffy telephone booths. Flu is contagious! Breathe through the nose. Keep the system alkaline, the bowels in good order; Phillips' Milk of Magnesia will help you do both. If you have any symptom of a cold, take Bayer Aspirin according to directions. Don't lose even five minutes! Genuine Bayer Aspirin can't harm you, but a common cold is dangerous at a time like this.

Eat plain foods, get enough rest, and don't over-do. Take these extra precautions to keep in sound physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

At any sign of actual flu, call a doctor at once. Do not try to treat yourself for influenza!

Township Relief Work

With the nation, state, county and cities engaging in welfare activities far beyond imagination as a result of the economic situation, another relief agency is going along quietly and in no small way helping to solve the problems of unemployment. And that agency is the township.

A report made public today by the Liverpool township trustees, who in bygone years have been recognized as the chief source of distribution of welfare funds, indicates the scope of this work. During the last year, the Liverpool township board expended $9,269.42 in unemployment relief.

Indicative of the way in which the relief fund was invested, $7,556.60 was used in extending aid to persons who were employed in township road work, which not only helped the applicant but proved an asset to the township through increased valuation of property abutting highways which were improved.

In addition, township funds were expended for groceries, coal, medicine, physicians' bills, hospital treatment, funeral bills, milk for babies and tubercular cases, distribution of flour, etc.

The trustees' report points out that relief was provided for 390 families. And this does not take into consideration attention given to the regular road work, which is no small part of the board responsibilities.

The Liverpool township report is enlightening to the taxpayers who sometimes are unmindful of the part the trustees play in welfare activities. The expenditures have aided the municipality in meeting problems growing out of the economic situation, for a comparatively small zone outside the corporation limits is served by the township board.

Who Worries About It?

There may be, scattered among the people, idealists who resent instinctively the operation of political patronage. But it is hard to imagine that the nation could be aroused to any such state of resentment against the practice of giving public jobs to loyal party workers as once produced a civil service reform.

It is possible and reasonable to argue, nevertheless, that there exists today cause for concern over corruption in assignment of public jobs equal to that which was felt following the disgraceful assassination of President Garfield. There is lacking a quality of idealism in the people which could make them see the threat to free government that is offered. It is to be feared.

If it were not lacking, Democrats wouldn't have dared to be so frank as to warn President Hoover that his appointments would be disregarded. But because there no longer is any disgrace in concealing a political party's eagerness to fill as many jobs with its henchmen as possible, the Democratic party could declare itself. It had assurance that Mr. Hoover's appointments would be political anyway; it was an unspoken clash between two sets of patrons.

The total of federal patronage is estimated at 117,000 jobs, to be awarded to as many Democrats in the next few years as can be clustered around the public treasury. As has become common in recent administrations, the cabinet position of postmaster general will be occupied by the party's chief political organizer—James A. Farley, in this case, unless the gentlemen finds he can work to better advantage in another place. But it is from the postmaster general's office that 15,650 postmasters, the largest single group in a political party's front line troops, are designated. They are the framework of the national political machine. By enlisting their skill and the gratitude of tens of thousands of citizens whom they help to organize, a party can maintain itself in power.

To an unprecedented extent, the Democrats, confessing themselves eager to be at the fruits of office, are redirecting attention to the viciousness of the spoils system. One wonders if they are wholly right in assuming that the public conscience is in a state of paralysis.

More of Everything

There is a familiar ring to the story that Japan's war department plans to bolster itself. Similar announcements from all countries form part of the background with which people of today are painfully familiar. They have come from France, from Great Britain, from Italy, from Spain. With variations, they have been heard in the United States.

There are many other things about Japan's situation which are familiar, too. The national purse has been stretched all out of proportion by the burden of military expenditures. Among unavoidable expenses inflicted by conditions of the times are relief for farmers and relief for creditors. With a budget in which revenue lags behind expenditure by 70 per cent, the government is obliged to listen to the armament terrorists explaining that it isn't safe to wait any longer for modernization of equipment.

Bankers, industrialists and economists who have failed to be impressed with the necessity the militarists describe are protesting through their organizations. There even is a Japan Economic League and, of course, the Japanese chamber of commerce. Both are on the firing line fighting for reduction of expenditures and a return to common sense.

Taxes already burdensome cannot be increased, according to the fiscal experts. Despite the willingness of the people to do everything in their power to make their nation the biggest and best of all, they no longer have the power it takes to pay the bills—at least not in the present. The vast deficit in anticipated revenue, consequently, will be made up by borrowing. Future generations of Japanese can share the hardship that was required back in the third decade of the 19th century to give their nation a little larger place on the map.

Japan's taste for occidental ways and ideas has led it into paths untouched by oriental feet. Along those paths an ambitious people have progressed far in the direction of industrialism and militarism, according to the conceptions of a mechanical age. They have found what they sought—a place of leadership in the orient. One suspects they are not so enthusiastic about the deficits that come in the wake of bombing planes and machine guns.

When Incomes Drop

The coincidence which has caused newspaper readers to see, side by side, stories of the huge decrease in incomes and the developing drive in congress for a sales tax is easily explained. Whether willing to face it frankly or not, the United States is confronted with the necessity of finding a new basis of taxation.

Shortsighted dependence on heavy rates which have taken millions from the fortunes of wealthy taxpayers was no more sensible than the formerly common belief that the nation had entered a new era in which prosperity would be eternal. Unwilling then to believe in the improbability of permanent prosperity, legislators still are stubborn. There are many of them who continue to hope against reason that by boosting surtaxes they will be able to get a larger flow of revenue from incomes dwindling so rapidly that no estimate made a year in advance possibility could foretell their tax productivity.

There are still large incomes. There may be a few larger than they would have been under the conditions of 1928. But they are negligible; large incomes show a far greater proportionate decline than small ones. On incomes under $5,000 the percentage of decline in the yield of taxes between 1929 and 1932 was 45 per cent. On incomes from $25,000 to $50,000 it was 75 per cent. On incomes from $100,000 to $500,000 it was 84 per cent, and on incomes over $500,000 it was more than 86 per cent.

The narrowness of the income tax base is shown in statistics for Ohio, in which 3 per cent of the population paid income taxes for 1930. Since then the base has been reduced even further, until it threatens to disappear entirely for taxation purposes. Surtaxes will not be of any avail; they are no more practical than restoratives applied to a dead man.

In this session of congress and in the first session of the next congress sales taxation will be discussed at length. Opposed vigorously by many organizations whose power is feared by congress, it forces itself into attention as the one means of obtaining money for national expenditures swollen by the extraordinary demands of the times. It must be considered as a practical tax device—not as a theory.

The national experiment to rally public resources for protection of weak points in the capital structure during the depression has cost $1,502,168,401 so far, with many millions more authorized for distribution. If borrowing continues at the rate it has been allowed to take during the first year's operation of the Reconstruction Finance Corp., the sum available for distribution will be exhausted at the end of the second year.

It is not expected to continue. Theoretically, the original strain on capital structure has been eased. The emergency has been passed. Readjustment has become more orderly. The R. F. C., instead of being an ambulance trying to answer hundreds of emergency calls at once, has become a hospital to which the sick may be taken for treatment. Its problem now consists of weeding out imposters. Previously, the problem was to make certain that everyone in acute need of treatment was able to get it.

It is not surprising that there should arise at this time rumors of corruption in the administration of its vast resources. They were inevitable; unless they attain really serious proportions they are not a just cause for popular alarm. No sum of similar size ever has been handled without charges of corruption. If the officials of the R. F. C. escape, their jobs without the customary examination of their judgment as public servants they will be unique.

There is insufficient perspective to calculate accurately what are the true proportions of this gigantic credit source. It was the logical instrument for the emergency it was designed to meet. If, in posterity's judgment, it was successful and if the hundreds of millions it made available are returned to the treasury, the expense will not have been too great.

Now For Basketball

Basketball, alert and faultlessly coordinated by its pre-holiday warmup, comes to the center of the stage now. The last football game of the 1932 season and the first of 1933 have been played in sunny California. It was many weeks before coaches call spring practice. Runners and jumpers are working out in the gymnasiums, but their show won't start until late in April. Basketball is king.

Invented to fill the winter months between the conclusion of the football season and the opening of the spring sports season, basketball has more than proved satisfactory. Due partially to its inception as a detail in the program of the Y. M. C. A., but in greater part to its own popularity, it has spread over the entire world. It was unknown previous to 1891.

To a greater extent than any other form of athletics popular in the United States it calls for highly developed team play. Development of individual players, furthermore, does not emphasize excellence in any particular phase of the game, but general excellence in all the motions and stratagems that experience has proved to be sound.

Highlights of Ohio History
LIVING IN THE WILDS.

By J. H. Galbraith

For The Associated Press.

A story by Nathaniel Massie, founder of Chillicothe, of the experiences of himself and a party of about 20 other men surveying in what now is Clark county, illustrates the hardships under which pioneer Ohioans labored.

Provisions usually ran low on such trips before they were through, they suffered from cold and exposure—and always there was the constant fear of attacks by Indians.

After supper, the men would sit around their fires—in small groups, so they would not be so easy to attack as one unit—until Colonel Massie gave the sign to retire. Then they would fix their fires for the night, take their blankets and walk in single file 700 or 300 yards away from the fires. There they would scrape away the snow, spread blankets, and lie spoon-fashion.

When one tired of the position and wished to turn over, all had to turn. At break of day, Colonel Massie in a low voice would direct two of the men to make a wide circle of the camp to be sure no Indians were in ambush. Then, if all was safe, they would arise to begin the long day's work.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK

New York Day By Day

By O. O. McINTYRE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—For those a cravat of coral.

Who have not seen the metropolis for 20 years the most astonishing changes are in 1, 2, 3 order—Broadway, Fifth avenue and the borough of the Bronx. The Bronx, once a scatter of bosks, now sports an expansive Champs Elysees known as the Grand Concourse.

Radio City blots out the old avenue skyline. Austere landmarks along the street—the Vanderbilt mansion, old Hotel Savoy and Delmonico's—are supplanted by spires as high as the sky and, at the moment, they are as empty as the horn of plenty. Millionaires' Row, north, now is deluxe apartments.

The only distinguishing marks of George M. Cohan's Broadway are his theater, the Criterion, Empire, Churchhill's corner and the Hotel Astor. Broadway's present make-up is not the result of an orderly change, but represents down-right decadence, sloughing off to a rotting phosphorescence of peep shows and penny-dance halls.

Prim rows of duplicate brownstones, running off either side of Broadway and Fifth avenue, are nearly obliterated. The few remaining are speckles or chopped up for recessed niches of trade and walkup flats. And you'd never believe that the once-beautiful W. 72d could become such a jade among streets.

After two experimental years of house-keeping there comes one solid conviction: People generally like to dwell on inefficiencies of their servants. But become as angry as all get out when anyone else does.

I called on a gentleman who returned from the Orient swathed in cotton, a victim of poison ivy. Rickshaws are painted with an enduring stain from this growth, and he happened to engage a freshly-painted one.

Among afternoon saunterers is the French artist, Pierre Brissard. His invariable costume includes a black double-breasted coat with finely checked shepherd plaid trousers, touched off by a tie of no uncertain coloring. Among secret sorrows of both Arthur Samuels and myself is lack of unconscious bravery essential for the wearing of such a garb. But don't encourage us—especially Samuels! He already has flamed forth in a salmon-pink shirt with collar to match and

Since the passing of William Johnston, editor and novelist, I have known no smoker addicted to the rat-tailed stogie. The stogie, so far as New York is concerned, lost its pull. That is, until today, I saw a gentleman in a wide flat hat puffing one in the lobby of the Waldorf. My first joust with nicotine was on the southern end of a Wheeling stogie, an ebony black perfect, with the kick of six miles. I exhaled three or four puffs in front of Tom Hill's barber shop one noon. My next remembering moment was of a faraway voice saying: "His lids fluttered. He's coming to!"

This same sultry summer, I became obsessed with a fixation for work, and those who can't stop laughing will kindly leave the auditorium. I decided, in lieu of no cash offers, to become indispensable to the J. M. Kerr Hardware Co. I went early on a Monday, lifted plow points, anvils, rolled kegs of nails, operated the pull-rope elevator and such until evening. This went on until Saturday, late, when I approached Mr. Kerr, out front wearing a silk hat, and coughing apologetically, inquired if there was anything else I might do. He thought a minute and said: "Run up to the postoffice. When you come back help yourself to a big dipper of ice water. Cool off your interior." From that day to this I've been a work atheist. One of the no-gooders.

I notice Eddie Cantor swinging through Park avenue's jungle of life, daily, with his fagelman, Ben Holzman. He tells me he is quarantined for the winter with his family in Delmonico's. There's an exhilaration in meeting up with Cantor. He has a contagious boyishness. Leaving him, I found myself skirting the curb to throw a leg over a fire plug in half leap-frog. And spent the rest of the block trying to straighten up.

From a current novel: "He loaned large sums to friends when there was a great need, his generosity knowing no limit. But now, when there was a definite demand for settlement, he found only recriminations. 'But that's America!' he said."

Don't be silly. That's Europe. (Copyright, 1933, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

How To Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

TREMENDOUS strides have been made in the study of ventilation and in the regulation of house heating. The modern theater, even in the summer is made endurable by its cooling system. It is a pleasure now to travel in Pullman cars which are cooled and ventilated.

Not so long ago I visited a newly constructed hospital. It was equipped with all modern conveniences, but what impressed me most was its perfect system of ventilation.

The superintendent conducting me about pressed a button and started the motors which pumped fresh air into each room. The rooms are heated in cold weather by passing warm air through the ventilators, and cooled in summer, by sending cold air through the ventilator system.

Don't Bar the Windows
With all the advances we have made in ventilation and heating, many persons still show little interest in the air they breathe. This is particularly true during the winter months. When the thermometer drops and snow is on the ground, windows are barred and the air in most homes is stifling. Ventilated air or air without life, is present in a room that is not properly ventilated. Such air is detrimental to good health.

Susceptibility to colds and infectious diseases can be traced to the faulty habit of living in overheated homes. Continued breathing of impure air leads to headache, loss of appetite, and digestive disturbances. It prepares the way for the common cold, gripe and pneumonia.

It is not essential to have the elaborate mechanism found in the hospital I visited. Proper ventilation can be maintained by any method that furnishes a continuous stream of fresh air. This is well accomplished by window ventilation. The windows should be opened at top and bottom. Keep the doors closed and avoid drafts.

Comfortable Ventilation
Bear in mind that proper ventilation is comfortable ventilation. The room should never be chilly or drafty. The temperature of the room should be between 65 and 72 degrees Fahrenheit.

I have mentioned the necessity of having fresh air and proper temperature. Humidity is the third important factor in the proper conditioning of air. Most homes are overheated, containing an excess of dry air. Excessive heat produces dryness of the air, with marked lack of moisture.

Humidity is best preserved by having a low temperature. Likewise, the air can be moistened by keeping a pan of water on the radiator, stove or gas heater.

Keep your windows open at night. Sleeping in a stuffy and poorly ventilated room is a stumbling block to good health. A house that is properly ventilated is quite unlikely to harbor germs and disease.

I know you would hesitate to drink impure water or to eat soiled food. Contaminated or dirty air is equally harmful to your body. (Copyright, 1933, K. F. S., Inc.)

ONCE OVER

By J. J. Mundy

Kindly Acts

Many times when you know you might have been accommodating and might have done little favors for people, because of the slight effort on your part, you would not extend courtesies.

How many kindly acts have you done in all your life, anyway? Very few that were prompted by generous whole-heartedness, isn't it true?

You wanted to court favor or had some other selfish motive. It wasn't entirely goodness of heart.

You don't seem to mind doing them for those who might help you socially or in some way financially.

You eagerly accept opportunities to aid the prominent or those not actually in need of your services or assistance.

But when it comes down to those who have nothing to offer that you want, you manage to avoid doing what others might consider a duty. Now don't forget that those who do not need your help don't waste any favorable thought upon you for what you do for them.

They thoroughly understand your motives.

The only real appreciation you can get is from those who have nothing to offer you. (Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Rhyme a Day

BY ALINE MICHAELIS.

The Good Intent

We are not turned to perfect things
Or flawless days on earth;
A false note mars the song life
Sings,
Tear-drops stains its mirth.

Our dearest plans can not come true,
Our fairest visions fail,
And in all things we dream and do
Some error must prevail.

And yet, how Godlike is our power
To see the good intent,
To find, in each imperfect hour,
The perfect deed we meant!

Sometimes a child's uncertain note
Is sweeter than the song
That, soaring from a singer's throat,
Holds rapt a breathless throng.

For perfect things we dare not ask
On this imperfect sphere;
But through each faulty word or task
We read the longing clear.

Old Thoughts

Life is but a wheel of change,
All things new and all things strange;
Yet with naught of lack or loss,
Though time take away the dross,
That which was in truth its own
Never from the heart has flown.

Through the cycle of the year,
As the rose and snow appear,
Through the sunshine and the rain,
Through the rapture and the pain,
Something all this change resists,
Something, deep within, persists.

Silent, viewless and profound,
Changeless, while the wheel goes round;
Buried, as the live roots lie,
While the leaves, wind-tossed, must die,
This the self that none may see,
This the true identity.

The Reviewing Stand

By TOM T. JONES.

AN outstanding departure in the varied consummations in the long history of East Liverpool was the installation of the fountain pump in the Diamond. The sections of it which appeared above the surface of the ground and from which water was procured by the thirsty arrived in East Liverpool on Friday, May 3, 1895.

It consisted of a circular iron basin into which the running water poured as it was passing on its outlet from for savage appearing metallic lions. It was from the mouths of the latter that the water came in constant streams by reason of the continual pumping of an engine in an excavation made beneath it.

For a considerable period following the installation of this pump which remained upon the spot for several years there was seemingly a crowd about it almost constantly. The young folks of that day were greatly intrigued by the possibility of drinking water from the mouth of a lion.

Usually they were not satisfied with that emanating from one of them but felt there was the need for trying the qualities that came from all of them. In the beginning there were heavy iron-like cups or decanters attached to the pump by means of chains so that any inclined to purloin them as souvenirs should be unable to do so.

The water thus supplied to the people had a strong dash of iron in it. There were those who attributed medical qualities to it for a time. Anyway, the well was a boon for those days and met a long-felt want in the rapidly developing town.

In succeeding days when officials of the city consumed after long study the present mechanical filtration system here there was no real need for the old fountain pump. It was finally decided to discard it. When this was done there seemed a void in the Diamond. For many years the pump and the Soldiers' monument just beside it seemed distinctive departures that gave to East Liverpool recognizable features.

Many public meetings were from time to time held about this pump and monument. People listening to addresses or other entertainment in its proximity moved about to quaff their thirst during such gatherings. Their passing marked the end of an era in the town's history.

PERSONS who have been present at many of the outstanding events in the history of the country and the world in some manner or another have often found themselves thereafter in East Liverpool or Columbiana county. The battle of Waterloo when Napoleon was defeated by English and Prussian forces changed the map of Europe.

Yet 70 years after it had been fought there dwelt in Columbiana county one of the three surviving men who had participated in that sanguinary and decisive fight. He was James Green, who then was 97 years of age and living at Ellsworth, near Salem, this county. He had enlisted in the English army at the age of 17.

He then was in good health and was a man with silvery hair. He had been an exemplary citizen who at times regaled those about him with recollections of the campaign which ended with the defeat of Napoleon and caused his subsequent banishment to the island of St. Helena.

Mr. Green, upon his arrival in this section of the country, had at one time been connected with the shoemaking establishment of Walter McCain. He had the rare privilege of noting the development of nations along lines that became possible from the victory at Waterloo.

He had also lived to note the Mexican and Civil War in America and the Franco-Prussian war in Europe with many others of lesser importance between the nations of the world. In his later days he had been brought to the attention of the students of Mt. Union college at Alliance. He accepted their invitation upon one occasion to address them. Upon this occasion he told many interesting things which served to heighten the interest of the students of history in the military campaign of Napoleon and those opposing him.

It was a singular fact that one of the three final survivors of that great battle should be found living in his last days in a part of Columbiana county, a spot far away from the place in which that eventful event occurred.

He visited East Liverpool the day before this holiday in the expectation that he could easily obtain such a picture. To his dismay he found it was almost impossible to do so. This, now when the 200th anniversary of the birth of the first President found the city and locality almost deluged with various likenesses of the Mt. Vernon resident and men and women of walks of life engaging activities to do him honor, seemed a situation scarcely to be realized fully.

Mr. McCoy at the time visited book stores and was not successful in his mission. He even went to see the superintendent of the East Liverpool schools, Mr. Sanor, and he found none in the school building here. He then went about and visited a number of his personal friends in the city to whom he confided his wish.

Finally his efforts were successful when he found a Washington picture in one of the lodge rooms in the city. He expressed great surprise at the prevailing situation here and in his own township. He recalled that a quarter of a century previously, in 1871, practically every home in St. Clair township had within it one or more pictures of George Washington.

An outstanding feature of the first agricultural fair at Columbian park during the week beginning October 13, 1902 was the driving by two dogs over the track of two race horses, "Humming Bird" with a mark of 2:35 and "Nan Wilket" with a mark of 2:25. The dogs were named "Rex" and "Mex." The horses were hitched together in the first exhibition and the dogs drove them about.

Then daily would follow a race of the two horses, each attached to a sulky in which the dogs sat holding the lines in their paws. Crowds came out to see this feature each day. Upon one of the days of the meeting when the two horses were being driven together the sulky was wrecked when one of the horses became a bit unmanageable. But the dog-driver escaped unhurt as did the horses.

Buying Barbara

by Julia Cleft-Addams ♦ Author of "YOU CAN'T MARRY"

SYNOPSIS: The law firm of Quentin, Lodely & Cane is about to crash. Lodely is a typical English "country gentleman," Quentin a bookish and retiring man of good breeding. Cane the office boy who has worked up to a partnership. It is Cane who has done the work for the firm. He and Lodely quarrel; he stormily orders Lodely out of his apartment, which is above the firm's offices, on the old Yarn Market of the town of Kings Mallard. Then he asks his housewife to call their 9-year-old daughter Leila.

Chapter 2. ANNE TAKES A MESSAGE

LIKE to come up to Mrs. Quentin's with me?" asked Mr. Cane. "You can play with little Barbara while I'm busy with her father."

"They said at school yesterday that Mr. Quentin was dead," returned the child partly.

"Well, he isn't, not yet. Don't you try and teach me my business, miss."

It seemed to him, in his sour anger, that he would do anything take any chance that remained to him, to build up again the fortune that had been snatched from his eager grasp.

"I'm ready, daddy."

He followed the child down the stairs and out of the house.

Mrs. Cane began to cry as the door of the house closed upon them. She remembered her pride at having married a solicitor, even if he wasn't, in the Kings Mallard sense of the word, a gentleman. If only he would consent to hide with her in some big city where nobody knew them!

She sat sniffling damply for nearly half an hour and was about to go in search of a strong cup of tea when her maid approached her, thumbing an envelope. Mrs. Cane threw up her hands.

"How many times have I told you, Annie, to bring in letters on a tray? And if it's a telegram—yes, I see it is—you'll have to get on your things and take it after Mr. Cane. He's told me that he wants all telegrams brought to him at once, wherever he is."

"And where he master to, then, madam?"

"Come up to see Mr. Quentin on Upper Mallard hill. He'll be walking slowly, he has Miss Leila with him. If you hurry, you may overtake him yet."

In a garden full of late roses, Mrs. Quentin and Mrs. Lodely sat enduring each other.

Mrs. Lodely endured Mrs. Quentin as the wife of her husband's senior partner, as an unsociable neighbor and as a bookish, reserved woman whom in years she would never learn to know. Mrs. Quentin endured Mrs. Lodely simply as a noise; a maddening noise that persisted somewhere beyond the circle of her dedicated thoughts.

"Do change places with me," urged Mrs. Lodely for the third time. "You ought to be relaxing comfortably after not sleeping at all for two nights."

"Thank you, but I would rather wished she could remember that this was a house lying under the shadow of death, but Lionel Quentin had been so many months dying and the disaster of the firm's collapse seemed so much more actual. In spite of herself she burst out with—

"What I want to know is, what are we going to do? I mean, all Sam and I have got is my 'little income' that I've been spending on myself. It won't go anywhere. Why, it isn't three hundred a year and Mark's doctor's fees have come to nearly that before now!"

"Still, you are fortunate in having it," said Mrs. Quentin, her eyes upon the distant window.

"Haven't you—you don't mind my asking—haven't you anything at all of your own?"

"Nothing. Less, even, than Lionel thinks."

"How d'you mean?"

"I mean that I lied to him the other day," explained Mrs. Quentin, her dark head still motionless against the back of the seat. "You see, I once had a young cousin, a reckless, lovable boy. A few years before his death he needed a loan and he insisted on giving me as part security some shares he held in a South African enterprise. Oh, I think I saw nurse beckoning! No, it's only the shadow of the apple-tree."

"Was it a gold mine?" Mrs. Lodely gave the short, high laugh with which she usually covered embarrassment and interest.

"I'm afraid not. Mr. Cane is very kindly having enquiries made in Johannesburg, but he confessed that at first glance the shares appeared to him practically worthless. Nevertheless, I have told Lionel that I managed to dispose of them for five hundred. It has eased his mind a great deal."

"But how long does he think that will last you, with a child to keep? Or shall you send Barbara back to your sister in France?"

"No, he wishes me to keep her with me, after he is gone. And the

STEEL BARGE ORDER PLACED

American Bridge Company to Build Six Boats.

The largest order for steel barges in more than a year has been placed with the American Bridge company of Pittsburgh by the Barrett Line, Incorporated, of Cincinnati, operating a line of steamers and barges in the Ohio and Mississippi river. The order, calling for six steel barges, will require 1,500 tons of steel for construction.

Each barge will be 196 feet long, 34 feet wide and eight feet deep. Delivery will be made about May 1.

The barges will be placed in operation on the lower Ohio river. The following boats were locked through No. 8 Tuesday: The Duncan Bruce, Louisville to Pittsburgh, with one barge each of gasoline, oil and contractors' supplies and five empty barges; the J. H. Hillman, Toronto to Pittsburgh, with two empty barges; the Senator Cordill, Pittsburgh to Cincinnati, with 275 tons of merchandise; the Cruiser, Welton to Pittsburgh, with three empty barges, and the Costanzo, Wheeling to Conway, with one barge of coal, and back, with two empty barges.

The vicar misses Farrell terribly, I believe," she said. "He had him in his charge for a whole year, wasn't it? Oh hello!"

"It's Cane," said Mrs. Lodely. "Just turning into the drive." (Copyright, 1932, Julia Cleft-Addams.)

Cane's telegram, tomorrow, arouses Mrs. Lodely's curiosity.

A SEAT IN THE CABINET

THOMAS J. WALSH (EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles picturing briefly men and women mentioned for posts in the Roosevelt cabinet.)

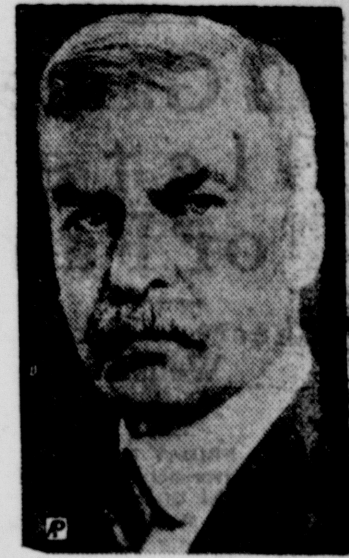

Small of stature, but sturdy in his fighting raiment, Thomas J. Walsh of Montana—mentioned as one of President Roosevelt's cabinet possibilities—is among the oldest members of the senate, in years and service.

Ordinarily an observant but quiet onlooker in the senate's many wrangles, Walsh steps in with furious vigor clothed in a smooth voice when the debate revolves around national or party issues.

Born in Two Rivers, Wis., June 12, 1859, Walsh first engaged in educational activities as a teacher and high school principal, exhibiting there the keen mind with which he often perplexes opponents in legislative maneuvering.

After practicing law in Helena, Mont., from 1890, he turned toward politics, lost a race for congress in 1906 and 1910, but was elected in 1919 to the senate seat he has held since.

BY ROBERT ELLIOTT,
Sports Editor, The Review.

WITH the first of the two annual scraps between Salem and East Liverpool featuring the program, 11 district high school basketball machines will present a slate of 12 games on Friday and Saturday nights for the edification of local fandom.

The Potter-Quaker battle, billed for the local court Saturday evening, is far and away the outstanding attraction since it will go a long way toward deciding the 1933 Columbiana county Class A champion. The Potters trimmed Salem twice last season in winning the title, but the Stonemans are rather determined that such shall not be the case this year.

Hard to Dope Out.
The game has the forecasting fraternity a little puzzled, to say the least. East Liverpool-Salem games are hard to dope out when one club has a decided preponderance, let alone when they are evenly matched.

No less than eight contests are slated for Friday night with Salem and East Liverpool playing on foreign courts. Salem is favored to win at New Philadelphia, while the Ceramics face a tough scrap at Steubenville.

Chester, victorious in two out of three starts, is running into some tough opposition at Wellsville. In the person of Frank Abbey's giant Benjamins, who are top-heavy favorites to win handily. Midland plays at home, entertaining a fast and highly-rated Ambridge quintet. The Steelers are on the short end of the odds.

Two battles involving Columbiana county teams, are also slated for Friday eve. Columbiana visits East Palestine and will likely receive a trimming, unless the dope bucket receives a decided upset. New Waterford and Salineville get together on the latter's floor with the former picked to win by a slight margin. The game may go the other way, however, without much trouble.

Lisbon faces Minerva in what should be a terrific battle between two mighty fine small ball clubs. The game is a Tri-County loop tussle and is booked for Minerva's gym. Neither team is defeated in league competition. Fairfield journeys to Darlington and should come out ahead.

The three Saturday night games, in addition to the East Liverpool-Salem clash, are East Palestine at Boardman, Salineville at Carrollton and Enon Valley at New Waterford. The Palestine battle is pretty tough to "guess," but the Columbiana county quint is our pick by a small margin. Salineville has hardly shown enough for the classy Carrollton aggregation, while New Waterford took a 35-19 beating from Enon Valley earlier in the season and has hardly improved enough to reverse the tables right now.

CUB FANS ASK HITS AND LAUGHS

BY F. A. RESCH
By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO—A lot of advance laughs have broken the monotony of Chicago's hot-stove league this winter, and there's just one reason—Babe Herman.

The boys are thinking about Babe's prize plays of the past—and what a laugh he'll draw from Cub fans next summer if he has more of his laughable brainstorms.

But more seriously, the rabid Cub followers chuckle in a different vein as they build up hopes that Herman's bat will provide some of the punch so sadly lacking in the never-to-be-forgotten world series of last September.

If Babe just clouts that ball as he has been hitting it for several seasons, idolizing Cub fans say he will be a bigger hero in Chicago than Hack Wilson was in his best days.

And if Babe does connect, the bleacherites will forgive him for any such antics as sliding into third with two mates already on the bag—just as they used to forgive Hack for fanning in the "clutches."

There hasn't been an outstanding circus performer in the Cub lineup since Wilson left. Although several of the club's standbys—including Cuyler, Stephenson and Manager Charley Grimm—are great favorites with north side fans, nothing can draw out their support like a slugger who plays the clown.

If Herman's mental lapses weren't forgiven in Brooklyn, and if his slugging wasn't fully appreciated with the tall-end Cincinnati Redlegs last year, Cub fans are pretty likely to make it up to him—provided he hits. North side fans always have been notably loyal to their heroes.

Babe, of course, readily admits he will be a big asset to the Brulls, and that it will be an unbeatable outfield with Floyd Herman in one

Chicago fans are getting themselves set for lots of laughs next summer at the antics of "Babe" Herman in his first season with the Cubs. Or they'll be satisfied if he just keeps up his recent hitting pace.

But to make good with the Cubs, Herman must overcome something of a traditional jinx at Wrigley field. Few and far between have been the established stars who maintained the pace of their past performances in their first year with the Cubs.

Local Girls Cop 17-13 Tilt

Mildred Johnson Stars In Defeat of Wellsville Quintet.

Holding their foes to three field goals, two by Dick and another by Weekley, the East Liverpool quintet took over the lead in the Tri-City Girls' basketball league Tuesday night by trimming the Wellsville Amos's Insurance five at the high school gym here, 17 to 13.

The victory enabled the local cagers to show a clean slate as far as league competition is concerned. The defeat was the first of the season for the Insurance machine, which held East Liverpool to a 14-14 tie in an overtime battle last month at Wellsville.

The local club didn't rely on foul shots to win for they received only six chances at the free throw line and converted only one of these. On the other hand, Wellsville was given 12 foul tries and looped seven to stay in the ball game.

Mildred Johnson, the locals' sharp-shooting center, led the attack on the Wellsville club with four field goals, while Ara Feldkamp added two more double points and a free throw. The other four Potter points were recorded by Wooley and Jewett who caged a field goal apiece.

Dick's two field goals and one foul gave her scoring honors for the Insurance combine. Woodward made good on the three foul chances she had and Daugherty caged two out of three charity throws. Weekley's fielder and a

Cornell Sports Program is Cut

Entire Winter and Spring Cards Given Up.

By The Associated Press.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 11.—For reasons of economy, Cornell university has cancelled entire winter and spring intercollegiate sports program with the single exception of basketball.

This drastic action, taken by the athletic council last night, carries with it abandonment of all schedules, varsity and freshman, in crew, wrestling, ice hockey, fencing, indoor and outdoor track, baseball and lacrosse, and means that Cornell will not be represented in the Intercollegiate Rowing association's annual regatta at Poughkeepsie nor in championships in any other sport for the rest of the school term.

The council, at the same time, asks its policy and finance committees to work out a scheme for the "promotion and encouragement of the greatest amount of athletic competition not inconsistent with the terms of its earlier action." This was interpreted to mean that intra-mural sports would be further encouraged and that some informal meets might be held.

SCHAAF MAY MEET CHAMP

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Jack Sharkey will defend his heavy weight championship in June against Ernie Schaaf or Primo Carnera, under plans formulated by Madison Square Garden.

Schaaf, who stopped Stanley Poreda in six rounds last week, has been matched with Carnera in a 15-round battle in the Garden Feb. 10, the winner to gain the right to face Sharkey for the title.

Schaaf's contract now is owned jointly by Sharkey and Johnny Buckley but it was understood it would not be renewed when it expires in March. Charley Johnson, brother of Jimmy Johnson, garden matchmaker, may take over Schaaf's affairs at that time.

Turf Due For Good Season

Matt Winn Looking Forward to Big Racing Year.

By COL. MATT J. WINN,
President of the American Turf association; managing director of the Latonia and Churchill Downs race courses in Kentucky and Lincoln fields in Chicago. Written for The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—The year 1933 as regards racing will be what we make it. Personally I look forward to a splendid year on the American turf.

Let us talk and think about the future. The past, with its losses, its disappointments and its tragedies has become history. It can do no good to recount them here. That is true of the turf, as it is of every other business enterprise. We must meet the situation with courage and confidence and in my opinion that spirit of optimism will be rewarded by public support.

Let me cite as an illustration the action of Churchill Downs of which I am an executive director, in maintaining the value of the Kentucky Derby at $50,000 added. This is the first and most historic of the stakes for three-year olds to be decided in the spring. The interest in this race is not only national, but world-wide. A reduction in its value at this time would have effected every breeder and owner of a thoroughbred, ever race course in America, and would have surprised and discouraged every lover of high class racing.

Now for the psychological effect. The response was immediate. Although the Kentucky Derby will not be run until May 6, we have already sold more than 500 boxes and there is every assurance that Churchill Downs will have one of the best meetings in its history.

This interest will increase and is certain to find expression in Chicago which now has become the turf center of America. The Century of Progress exposition which will open its doors on June 1, will surpass in beauty, originality and completeness all other similar enterprises. Every hotel and business house in Chicago will profit by the millions who will come to Chicago to see this marvelous exposition, and the race courses with other sports and amusements will receive their share.

30 File Entries To Fight

Names Accepted up To Friday by Director.

COLUMBIANA county eliminations in the American Legion's state amateur boxing tournament, will get under way Wednesday night, January 18, at 8 o'clock in the Eagles' auditorium, under the sponsorship of East Liverpool post No. 4. It was announced by Director T. A. McDonough.

The winners of the fighting that night will return here a week later, according to present plans, to determine the Columbiana county champions in the eight different classes. The winners will then represent the county in the district tournament, the survivors of which will advance into the state finals to be held at Akron.

About 30 boys in all classes have filed entries so far with McDonough and are in training at the Grand Billiard parlor in the Diamond. Entries will be received by McDonough at the billiard parlor through tomorrow, the closing time being Thursday midnight.

The entries received so far are from this city, New Cumberland, Midland, Newell, Chester and Wellsville. McDonough would also like to hear from amateurs in Salem, Lisbon, Columbiana, East Palestine and Salineville before the lists close tomorrow.

The large entry list insures local fans of plenty of action when the mitt-swinging gets under way a week from tonight. An advance sale of tickets will probably be held and if the proper interest is shown in the affair the duets should be at a premium by fight time.

The forest service estimates that for every buck killed by hunters in Sierra National Forest in California it cost the shooters $99.

STRENGTHENED by the return of Harvey Cullen, star center, ineligible last week, Tom Dixon's Potters went through a spirited and most respectable workout last evening. The varsity scrimmaged Nate Lorah's sophomore reserves for about 25 minutes and piled up a 39 to 5 score. Cullen looped seven field goals, several of the sensational variety. It was definitely announced that he will play against Steubenville and Salem and if you think his return isn't going to aid Mr. Dixon's lads just take another guess. Dixon shifted his other men around so much that it was impossible to get a line on the first string lineup. Bill Laughlin is about set for a guard post, but Ed Smith, Andy Steward and Bob Kapp are waging a merry battle for the other berth. Any one of the three may start. Cullen will be at center, but the forwards—well, you're guess is about as good as mine.

Teddy Varosz, Monaca's very popular little welterweight, is marking a little time until Ray Foutts, his manager, lines up a few tussles for him. The dopsters say Ted is going in against Billy Holt, but Foutts is more anxious to get him in against some of the "big" boys. However, these gentlemen want more money than Pittsburgh promoters can give and aren't very anxious to meet Ted any place else. Incidentally, Champion Jackie Fields is slated to defend his title against Young Corbett Feb. 22. Corbett is our choice.

THE Eastern district basketball tournament, in which the Potters take part, is slated for slightly different arrangements this year. In past seasons it has been held at Dennison on two successive week-ends, but this year only eight teams will go to that school for their sectional games on March 3-4. The remaining 11 district quintets will journey to Steubenville on March 3-4. The four semi-finalist at each place will then return to Dennison on March 10-11 for the district finals. East Liverpool, Wellsville, Toronto, Bellare, Bridgeport, Martins Ferry, Mingo, Shadyside, Tiltonville and Steubenville play at the St. Hub City in the sectional journey. The teams at Dennison on March 3-4 will be Cambridge, Coshocton, Barnesville, Dover, New Philadelphia, Uhrichsville, Zanesville and St. Clairsville.

It's our 'umble opinion that the Potters get somewhat of a "break" in this arrangement. They'll have played on the St. Hub court before the tourney and will have a chance to get used to tournament competition and crowds against much easier opposition than they would at Dennison. We may be wrong in this but it deserves a try, at least. As in past seasons only one team will go from the Eastern district to the state finals at Columbus, March 17-18.

PRIZE fighting will do its first turn here in several months next week when the Columbiana county eliminations of the American Legion's state-wide amateur tournament get under way. The boys are scheduled to start mixing things up a week from tonight at the Eagles' auditorium. The winners will return a week later to determine who will represent this county in the district tournament, which also may be held here. Those amateur scraps furnish just about the best entertainment that can be procured for a real sports fan. Knockouts are more than plentiful and it's a poor scrap that doesn't boast at least five or six knockdowns. The Legion is to be complimented on its interest and activity in behalf of amateur boxing. Their show next week deserves financial as well as moral support.

Major League Economy Wave Skips Many Deserving Players

Practically All of 1931's Star Performers Listed for Salary Boosts; Pirates Generous in Dealing Out Wages.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Major league magnates definitely are committed to a program of economy but deserving ball players will be rewarded in the usual fashion just the same.

With the possible exception of the St. Louis Cardinals, clubs in both the American and National leagues already have, or will boost the salaries of star performers of the 1932 campaign. These increases, however, probably will be more from offset by slashes in the at-pends of other players whose work last season was not outstanding.

Sam Bredon, president of the Cardinals, already has announced his payroll will be "slashed," but even he has given no indication that every player on the roster will be required to take a cut irrespective of 1932 performance.

The Pittsburgh Pirates already have granted increases to Lloyd Waner and Larry French, restored Paul Waner's salary to its 1931 level, and boosted the pay of such youngsters as Earl Grace, Tony Piet, Bill Swift and Floyd Vaughn. Washington, likewise, has been generous in dealing with Monte Weaver, and it was understood the Senators would boost the salaries of both Al Crowder and Goose Goslin.

Col. Jacob Ruppert probably will ask Babe Ruth to accept a cut of $5,000 or $10,000. Others of the Yankees' squad may get slight cuts. All the other clubs likewise are planning on a general scaling down of the player payrolls but, at the same time, providing fatter checks for such deserving performers as Johnny Allen of the Yankees, Lon Warneke of the Cubs, Dale Alexander of the Red Sox, and many another.

The Philadelphia Athletics cut sharply into "overhead" when they sold Al Simmons, Mule Haas and Jimmy Dykes to the White Sox.

Galveston, Tex., is planning to hold a bathing beauty event at the 1933 National baseball meeting which will be at Galveston.

Midland Downed, 23 to 22

New Castle Trade Fiv Survives Losers' Rally.

Barely surviving the losers' desperate fourth quarter rally, New Castle Trade School scored a 23-22 victory over Rusty Lomond's Midland high froomen Tuesday night on the Steelers' court. It was Midland's sixth consecutive defeat, but the Steelers displayed their best form of the season.

The victory also enabled New Castle to avenge a 32-31 defeat it suffered at Midland last season.

The visitors, last night, hopped into a 10-6 lead in the first quarter and increased their advantage to 15-8 at the intermission. The third quarter was closely-fought and devoid of much scoring, each club collecting four points, Midland trailing by a 19-13 count as the final period got under way.

However, Lomond's machine started clicking in fine style in the final session and just barely missed tying the score before the game ended. The Crucibles piled up points in this chucker to four for the invaders.

In a preliminary the Midland Reserves dropped a 31-11 decision to the "Red Devils," a Steel City aggregation.

STOCKING RUNS

Miss Mah Li Kim, talented Chinese beauty, is now studying art in New York City. Her father is the manager of a large silk firm. Like all high caste Chinese, she is a connoisseur of silks and knows the best way to care for them . . .

"MY father has taught me how to judge silks and care for them," says this slim, exotic girl of the Orient. "Silk—seemingly so fragile—is really a tough, strong fibre when it is new, because of its elasticity.

"Chinese women teach their servants to wash silk the way that preserves this very precious elasticity—with Lux.

"My 2-Minute Way"

"Would you like to know my method for washing silk stockings? It's easy, and it doubles their wear.

"I take one teaspoon of Lux for each pair, add lukewarm water to Lux, press the suds very gently through the stockings, rinse well."

Thrifty American girls, too, wash stockings this 2-minute Lux way each night. It cuts down stocking runs, because when the silk keeps its elastic quality, it gives under strain—doesn't break. Cake-soap rubbing and soaps containing harmful alkali too often destroy elasticity. Avoid them! Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

STOCKING RUNS

Miss Mah Li Kim, talented Chinese beauty, is now studying art in New York City. Her father is the manager of a large silk firm. Like all high caste Chinese, she is a connoisseur of silks and knows the best way to care for them . . .

"MY father has taught me how to judge silks and care for them," says this slim, exotic girl of the Orient. "Silk—seemingly so fragile—is really a tough, strong fibre when it is new, because of its elasticity.

"Chinese women teach their servants to wash silk the way that preserves this very precious elasticity—with Lux.

"My 2-Minute Way"

"Would you like to know my method for washing silk stockings? It's easy, and it doubles their wear.

"I take one teaspoon of Lux for each pair, add lukewarm water to Lux, press the suds very gently through the stockings, rinse well."

Thrifty American girls, too, wash stockings this 2-minute Lux way each night. It cuts down stocking runs, because when the silk keeps its elastic quality, it gives under strain—doesn't break. Cake-soap rubbing and soaps containing harmful alkali too often destroy elasticity. Avoid them! Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

EAST END NEWS

LEAGUE MAKES RELIEF PLANS

Favor Cash Payment For Welfare Labor.

The East End Good Government league at a meeting in the Odd Fellows' temple in Mulberry street Monday night went on record favoring the payment partly in cash for services of men employed by the municipal bureau of charity and welfare. It was said that while orders were being issued for food and clothing, shelter and other necessities were required.

Members suggested during the discussion that a percentage of the total to be paid in cash or by check, to be disposed of in any way. Secretary James Kidder was instructed to submit the proposition to the welfare bureau executives.

At the same time the league advocated mining of the coal dispensed by the bureau by unemployed miners who are now receiving aid. It was indicated the fuel could be dug in local mines and aid in preserving the coal fund for other relief.

Indorsement of the installment plan of tax payment and abolishment of the delinquent tax penalty was also made at the session. County tax books could be left open indefinitely, it was said.

A movement to induce out of town industries to locate in East Liverpool was launched and definite steps are expected to be taken in pointing out the industrial advantages of the Ceramic City and inviting them, officials said.

Reports of committees on the ticket sale at the recent benefit soccerball game at Patterson field with which to purchase street car passes for East End high school students were heard. Secretary Kid-

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, swollen look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a feeling of no good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 50c—Adv.

'TECHNOCRACY' KIWANIS TOPIC

Ralph Sweetser Speaks At Wellsville Meeting.

Ralph Sweetser spoke to a large crowd on "Technocracy" Tuesday night at the meeting of the Wellsville Kiwanis club in the Haugh funeral home after a dinner at the Jones confectionery in Main street.

Sweetser, with the aid of an engineer's chart, went into the question at great length and criticized the technocrats for failure to present a logical sequence of facts which would establish their claims.

Among the principal factors to which he said, scientists attributed the depression were over-estimation of agriculture; the World war; decreased value of silver; inflation of credit and the machine age.

At the close of his address he was complimented by Superintendent of Schools S. E. Daw who urged the members to follow up his remarks by reading all possible on the subject.

Dr. G. W. McMillan was chairman of the program committee, while R. L. McLean presided.

Notice to Plumbers and Property Holders

Plumbers, Property Holders and all parties interested will take notice that as heretofore, no one is allowed to dig up a street, alley, sidewalk or any public property to make sewer, water or gas connections without a written permit issued by the Department of Public Service.

Permits are issued for water and gas connections, as usual, but no permits are issued for sanitary sewer because of a solemn compact of the City of East Liverpool with the State Board of Health that all future sanitary sewer connections would be made under direction of a City Plumbing Inspector, which position was recently abolished by City Council.

Parties interested will govern themselves accordingly and avoid legal complications.

THE THEATER

HARDING-HOWARD TEAM STARRED IN BILL AT CERAMIC

"Animal Kingdom" is Study of Modern Life.

Ann Harding and Leslie Howard are again so-called! This time it is in RKO-Radio pictures' adaptation of that delightful Philip Barry play that was last season's stage hit in New York—"The Animal Kingdom." Leslie Howard is playing the part he created on the stage. The same is true of William Gargan as the pugilist butler, and of Ilka Chase as a not-too-bright society woman.

"The Animal Kingdom," opening Thursday at the Ceramic theater for a run of four days, presents a searching study of modern life. It shows, with almost clinical insight, men's mistresses do not necessarily live out of wedlock—that many of them are those who preen themselves under the title of "respectable wife."

Miss Harding plays the mistress who turns out really to deserve the name of wife. Leslie Howard is, of course, the husband. Myrna Loy plays the seductive wife. Others in the cast not already mentioned are Neil Hamilton, Henry Stephenson, Leni Stengel and Donald Dillaway.

Edward H. Griffith has directed "The Animal Kingdom" from the script by Horace Jackson. The picture has been beautifully staged and, with four beautiful women in the cast and the background one of culture and wealth, the gowns are something to rave about.

Current Play Bills

COLUMBIA.
"Night After Night," screen adaptation of the Louis Bromfield novel, "Single Night," opens Thursday at the Columbia theater.

George Raft, Constance Cummings, Wynne Gibson, Mae West and Alison Skipworth will be seen in the leading roles.

Action of the film is set in a luxurious New York speakeasy, an old brownstone mansion rescued from decay to serve as an oasis for Manhattan's wealthy thirsty. Raft, young player who scored sensational success in minor roles in "Scarface," "Dancers in the Dark" and "Madame Racketeer," has his first leading role as proprietor of the "joint."

strains the heart. Thoxine positively stops coughs in 15 minutes or money back. A safe, pleasant prescription, not a cough syrup. 35c all druggists.

the Broadway stage, who makes her movie debut in the film, and Miss Gibson, are two of Raft's ex-sweethearts who find more difficulty in breaking the tie with him than he does.

Miss Cummings is seen in the role of a Park avenue debutante who finds that the speakeasy has been established in the house in which she was born, a couple of decades back, in its better days. A nostalgic yearning draws her back to it time after time.

Her frequent visits bring her in contact with Raft, who is fascinated by her. And a queer romance develops between the two—a romance which is precipitated into startling channels by a series of unusual events.

STATE.
Richard Dix, virile RKO Radio star, will be seen at the State theater Thursday in "Roar of the Dragon," a stirring spectacle of the Far East, reflecting a vivid panorama of the hazardous frontier with its stately parade of adventure-seekers.

Appearing with Dix is Gylli Andre, famous Danish beauty from Copenhagen who makes her screen debut in the film.

A striking perspective insight into the Manchurian situation which has plastered the newspapers throughout the nation for months, is presented in "Roar of the Dragon." Unfolding a tale of the experiences of a group of Occidental refugees in a small town, the picture is as graphic as a newsreel in its details of the present chaotic condition in China.

Dix depicts a hard-boiled American captain whose river-boat is attacked near the village of Yoo Yoo, necessitating port anchorage for repairs. Here he meets the Russian refugee, portrayed by Miss Andre, and assumes leadership of the boat's passengers and the town's inhabitants to combat the banditry of a frontier marauder who has been annoying them.

The love story, between Dix and the exotic newcomer, augmented by an appealing romance between Arline Judge, pert, vivacious ingenue of "Are These Our Children?" and Edward Everett Horton

Generations of Expert BUTTER and CHEESE MAKERS

IF YOU were living in Canton Berne, Switzerland, 100 years ago you would have heard of the Isaly family and its reputation for making delicious cheese and butter. The Isaly herd of cows, grazing there high in the Alps, was the pride of the countryside for miles around. In 1833, Eugene Isaly, an older son came to America. He brought with him his famous copper kettle for cheese making. The great grand daddy of the present Isaly store owners settled in Switzer township, Monroe County, Ohio. It is called the "Switzerland of America" and the people there still talk Swiss. These facts are interesting to those who like to understand the beginning of things. They explain why the descendants of these clean, hearty, generous people of the Alps should have clean, white dairy stores in which fresh, pure dairy products are sold in generous measure.
